Creative Advantage Workshop: Intentional Partnering

In partnership with the Seattle Art Museum, The Creative Advantage is offering free professional learning workshops focused on sharing best practices for partnerships between schools and arts providers. Workshops are open to teaching artists, arts educators, teachers, arts administrators, community-based organizations and others interested in issues of access, equity and creativity.

Through an interactive format, this workshop (the first in a series of four) focuses on the fundamental best practices for successful partnerships between schools and arts providers. Observe lessons in action, discuss new ideas, share personal perspectives and gain new skills in a community of peers.

There are two options for this workshop: February 26 or 28. RSVP for February 26 here <<http://officeofartsulture.cmail2.com/t/y-l-ihdyuk-jrljihdyuu-g/>>, or February 28 here <<http://officeofartsulture.cmail2.com/t/y-l-ihdyuk-jrljihdyuu-w/>>.

School Spotlight: Nova

Nova High School held their Exhibition Night on January 22nd.

Exhibits included a wonderful example of the collaboration between Nova science and visual arts teachers in a pilot jewelry making class started by visual arts teacher, Karen Kosoglad this year.

In the photo above, Nova student, Nik explains etching images into copper and electroforming objects into metal. Jewelry-making students also exhibited pendants, sawing metal, soldering, casting and more.

January 8th Arts Teams Workshop ...your feedback requested on arts liaison position

Arts Teams members from the Central Arts Pathway Arts Teams gathered on January 8th at the Seattle Asian Arts Museum to share their experiences and ideas from year one of arts plan implementation and to prepare for their year two planning. Both the Power Point presentation and notes from the meeting can be found on this Dropbox link:

<https://www.dropbox.com/sh/fp0hzlx0k7198l9/AAANTepohQmJHxbNoUdBXRzPa?dl=0>.

Highlights include:

- Identifying trends in arts goals across schools, e.g. Family arts events in elementary schools. All-staff arts integration trainings that serve both to teach new learning strategies and to build staff unity through art-making.
- Brainstorming ideas for the targeted arts partnership funds: Desire for ways for students and schools to express identity through arts.
- Across the focus groups, the need for an arts liaison position was expressed. We'd like to hear your feedback on the idea of using $1000 of the arts partnership money as a stipend for an arts team member who would act as the team liaison between community arts partners, school staff and district arts staff. Training and supports would be provided.
- Your FEEDBACK requested. Please email Audrey Querns with your opinions on this arts liaison idea. Yes? No? What should be included in the job? How should the team member be selected?
